shower the day before, turned the woman with six little children out of the house, locked the doors, and left them with nowhere to go. The shower came on, and it will be remembered that it was a heavy min storm; the beds and all the firmiture, were drenched through and through; the family ran under cover; inch came on, and they had nowhere to go and no money to help themselves with. They staid out all hight long with their goods.

Here was a hard-working woman, a little baily at the breast, two crippled children just able to crawl about, but could not walk or stand from the effects of scarlet fever last winter, and three others under 12 years of age, unable to render any assistance, out all night long with their beds and other furniture drenched with the rain, and no one appeared to lend a helping hand. I went to the place in the evening as soon as my sitention was correct, and I found it tended wome than described. It was a family of good reputation. A house was furnesslately found, a month's rent paid in advance by the Associated Charities, and the family were at once moved into it and made as combrathles, and the family were at once moved into it and made as combrathles, and the family were at once moved into it and made as combrathles possible.

"A few days before a woman came to merrying bitterly over her condition. Her husband was blind and in one of the bospitals, she had an infant six months old and four other children under eleven years old. The cent had not been paid and the landlord had put all her furniture out of the house and turned berself and family of little ones upon the street. She had put them as safely as she could upon the goods and came furriedly to the office of the Associated Charilies for help. She had no money, no bread, and no way of earning any, I turned the matter over to one of our trusted agents for prompt action, and in a few hours another house was secured, a month's rent paid in advance, and the family moved into it, with a supply of bread to meet the necessites of the case."

ese are samples coming to our attention "These are samples coming to our attention and requiring our assistance promptly at the central office. If the good people of Washington could realthe what we have to meet so frequently and the responsibility we cannot and do not want to shirk, they would never permit us to be short of the necessary means to meet the emergencies. I am at the central office, 924 G street, every day between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon, where I will be glad to see these interested in relieving the distresses of the poor in a prompt, healthful, and systematic way.

An Indian Agent's Bond. District Attorney Worthington, for the United ates, last Saturday entered suit against Lester H. Bartlett, S. L. Phelps, M. M. Parker, E. Koontz Johnson, and Samuel J. Ritchie, and Carrie M. Evans, administratrix of John O. Evans; sureties on the bond of E. B. Townsend as Indian agent for $50,000, to recover $813. The difference grows out of the settlement of Mr. Townsend's accounts at the treasury department, and disallowance of certain items which he claims should be credited him.

GEORGE MILLER ACQUITTED.

Judge Wylle Again Gives His Opinion of Convict Testimony. The trial of George O. Miller, ex-detective, harged with receiving a reward from Mr. Reginald Fendati, in October, 1881, for police services rendered, was concluded in the crimi-nal court last Saturday with a verdict of ac-

it. He denied retaining any of the money for himself.

This closed the testimony in the case. Brief arguments followed and the judge then sharped the jury and scindited that he was unable to see any testimony upon which to been a conviction. In speaking of using criminals as witnesses he said:

"I do not suppose that Berry would have been brought here from judy probably. If it had not been for some preserve from a very high source. It is a scandalous thing to bring a notorious burglar and thich here, especially if any officer is authorized by the government to promise him parden if he will convict some-body else who has not been convicted. Every time the occasion presents itself I shail express myself feely against any practice of that kind.

"There was a most scandalous attempt made There was a most scandalous attempt made inst the administration of justice in that a some few mouths upon in this court. A manually under conviction in the penitentiary-otorious burging and thief, under innumensing the control of the control of term—not pardon the man who is unquestionably guilty and convicted, with the chance of gutting his evidence to use against somebody else whose guilt is doubtful."

The jury was out about fifteen minutes before returning a verifier of not guilty. This ends the cases against Mr. Miller. Championship game to-day, Capitol park.

Theater Comique Summer Garden.

Alice Oates brings her engagement here to a close next Saturday night, appearing in Balti-more Monday following. This last week of her more Monday following. This last week of her stay she will give "La Mascotte" four and "Prin-cess of Trebizonde" five performances, im-personating Bettina in the former and Raphael in the latter. Miss Oates has von deserved approbation by her performances at the Comique and her engagement was a pay-ing investment for the management of that theater. He sticees has been so marked that she will doubtless return during the regular season.

Linda Gilbert, whose benevolent work for prison reform is known everywhere, says: "I find your most valuable Fond's Extract not only a delightful auxililiary to the bath, but extremely beneficial to any head trouble arising from over-tasked mental conditions, its effect on the nervous system being specially good. I regard it as a great boon to humanity, and, used with judgment, will alleviate most of the sufferings that nervous brain workers are subject to.

"Respectfully, Linda Gilbert."
